EDITOR'S COLUMN

John Weir, Ph.D.

Three months and already a full year of MCPA benefits for our members! Christy Gazulis reports (P.10) on the info to date about our day long CE course in September with Dan Wile. And Irwin Gootnik will be featured at our April 20 Dinner/Speaker 2 CEU meeting, and you need to reserve (P.13) your spot by April 16. Jacqui Coryell describes (P.8) some plans for I&R. Student Camerin Ross writes (P.11) about the recent soiree at Ann Buscho's. Nancy Haugen reports (P.7) on the CPA Leadership Conference she attended with Keith Sutton and Beth Tabakin. And for all the activity and plans for this year see Beth's President's Message (P.2). This issue ends my tenure as Newsletter Editor as the task passes now into the capable hands of Laura Cabanski-Dunning. It has been my privilege over the past 2+ years to serve on the Executive Committee and observe the industry of the many volunteers who contribute their time and talent to make our Association so valuable to the community and the membership. To all of them, and to all you readers, thank you for the pleasure of your company.

Spring has sprung and so have many new MCPA ideas and events.

My fantasy of increasing participation by both new and experienced committee members continues to be realized. (This is a hint.) John Weir, Ph.D. our Newsletter editor is passing the baton to Laura Cabanski-Dunning, Ph.D., a first time official board member. Last fall, she was an invaluable CEU committee member and helped organize the successful 6 CEU event with co-chairs Christine Gazulis, Ph.D. and me. I am sad to see Dr. Weir leave, but he promised to attend board meetings from time to time. (HINT; Interested members are welcome to attend board meetings, but can't vote until they are official board members.) As the newsletter editor, Laura Cabanski-Dunning, Ph.D. can now vote!

Roberta Seifert, Ph.D. and I coordinated a full membership drive for the first time in recent memory. The letter included the long list of:

Reasons to Belong to MCPA.

1. Be an active member of your professional organization
2. Attend our yearly business meeting and individually introduce your practice, interests, and expertise to other members.
3. Meet local colleagues and find out who they are face-to-face.
4. Receive notices of soirees for MCPA members only in private homes.
5. Receive MCPA Newsletter immediately.
6. Write articles for the MCPA newsletter and 'get published'.
7. Discounts for MCPA events....including CEU workshops, dinner/speaker meetings, holiday celebrations, etc.
8. Join the Information and Referral network aka : I and R to increase your referral base.
9. Receive up-to-date news about how CPA and MCPA are advocating for our profession.

10. Learn about what you can do to advocate for psychologists and important mental health issues.
11. Join the MCPA list serve.
12. Be or be mentored by a volunteer MCPA mentoring program for graduate students, and those about to be or newly licensed clinician.
13. Share your expertise with other members or host a soiree in your home.
14. Be more involved and help plan activities or join the MCPA board.
15. Be a leader in your field of psychology!!!!

CPA is #1! On March 5, 2007 at the APA State Leadership Conference in Washington DC, CPA was named the OUTSTANDING STATE PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION for 2007! The vote for this very prestigious award, which is given out by the APA Division of State, Provincial and Territorial Psychological Association Affairs (Division 31), was unanimous!

MCPA is a chapter of CPA. It means that a local group of psychologists have voluntarily chosen to associate themselves with CPA, much the same way that CPA has chosen to associate with APA. In support of a mutually beneficial relationship between local communities and CPA, CPA supports a number of benefits and information services at no cost to the Chapter. The members of CPA support these services. As such, (here comes the sales pitch), MCPA encourages membership in CPA. Did you know that CPA is committed to encouraging the adoption of sensible laws that respect and advance the practice of psychology, increase the availability of needed mental health services in California, and promote patient well-being and the confidentiality of the psychologist-patient relationship? As I learn about CPA's functions including advocacy, I feel grateful to have had them working on my behalf. Without them, the practice of psychology in California may not be the honored profession I treasure and enjoy. Check out the CPA website. CPA members can sign up for free on their Find a Psychologist locator service. Become searchable through the website of your professional California Psychological Association.

Nancy Haugen, Ph.D., MCPA's Disaster Response Chair and I attended a three day CPA Leadership and Advocacy Conference in Sacramento March 18-20. (Mark Kamena, Ph.D. our GAC representative was unable to attend due to a prior commitment.) Keith Sutton, our student representative, joined us on Tuesday for training and lobbying efforts. Dr Haugen has written about our experience elsewhere in this newsletter. Here's a photograph of the three of us from MCPA and five of our CPA colleagues.

March 3, 2007 Hands On Disaster Response Training is a success.....thanks to Nancy Haugen, Ph.D.!!!!!!

Kudos to MCPA's Disaster Response Chairwoman Nancy Haugen, Ph.D. who orchestrated a successful multi-media day completed with the assistance of the Corte Madera Fire Department's training in vivo learning how to extinguish diesel/gasoline fires (without spreading them first). We learned how to and received a tool to turn off the main gas line to a house and how to control main water valves. Nancy included the Red Cross, Fire Department, Chief Ryan, the volunteer Disaster Response coordinator of Marin, a full packet of practical information for each person, arranged the CEU's for psychologists, MFT's and LCSW's and provided a table of great food and beverages and with a beautiful fresh orchid in the center.

MCPA is proud to announce that Dr. Haugen has already spoken to me about planning the next CEU Disaster Response event that will address issues specific to Marin County. I am deeply grateful that she has taken the lead for MCPA Disaster Response and is doing such an outstanding job. (She may have, in fact, saved my life. That's me below learning how to put out a fire, after I spread it!!!) I learned that using a fire extinguisher effectively takes practice and good coaching!

I hope to see everyone at the next training.

New on the horizon is a coordinated effort by the chapter presidents of Alameda, San Francisco, Contra Costa and Marin to join forces across the bridges and plan an inaugural event together. Each of the chapters has already helped Marin by publicizing our April 20th event to each of their members.

You need CPA's support and CPA needs your support on SB822. Write letters, talk to your elected officials and help pass this important legislation. Curious as to what I am talking about? Log on to www.cpapsych.org for current information.

I look forward to hearing from you. Remember anyone who is an MCPA member is welcome to attend the next board meeting on Sunday, April 29, 2007 10-1 in San Rafael. Feel free to call (415) 459-7707 or email me drbethh@comcast.net with any and all ideas. Happy Spring!

Leadership and Advocacy Conference

By Nancy Haugen, Ph.D.

The name “SB822” may totally change the rest of your professional life...

11 Counties in the state of California have NO (zero, nada, none) prescribing psychiatrists.....

The state prison system has offered $300,000 a year to any prescribing psychiatrist who will come to work for them.

There is an acute crisis with not enough psychiatrists available to provide the expertise to provide medication for much of the population in the state.

SB822 is the bill authored by Senator Sam Aniston to give psychologists the right to prescribe medication for mental and emotional issues. Although similar bills have been introduced in the past, there is a much greater chance of this one being passed. The implications are huge.

MARIN COUNTY HAS MORE PSYCHOLOGISTS AND PSYCHIATRISTS PER RESIDENT THAN ANY OTHER COUNTY IN THE STATE (including San Francisco and the different counties making up Los Angeles).

This was just one of the main things that Beth Tabakin, Keith Sutton and I learned at the Leadership and Advocacy Conference in Sacramento last week. You will be hearing more about this as the bill begins to move through the legislative process, but Beth and I learned for two days the ins and outs of the State Psychological Association and the government. We also started the process of creating the Three Bridges Psychological group where the Marin, San Francisco and Alameda Psychological Associations will combine on projects to begin to offer more resources and experiences to all our members. Keith joined us on the third day when everyone went to the Capitol to meet state senators and assembly members.

Many psychologists want to expand the scope of their practices by having prescribing rights. Some see this as providing more freedom to support and manage patient care more effectively. Also, given our aging population, medication support by psychologists might provide expanded service to Alzheimer and Dementia patients.

You will be hearing more about this because CPA will need our individual support in writing letters and showing support as the California Medical Association tries to block this expansion of our scope of practice.

Information & Referral Committee

Jacqui Coryell, Psy.D.

Serving as a member of the Information & Referral Service can be a very rewarding experience – both for altruistic reasons and for professional gain.

The purpose of I&R is to be of service to our community by responding to telephone inquiries about a variety of topics. Committee members take turns staffing our designated telephone line (456-4026) for a two-week “tour of duty.” This involves regularly checking into the voicemail for messages, or by carrying the pager provided. If the caller is looking for a referral, the psychologist reviews the profile sheets of the participating members and makes a match based on the criteria (e.g. insurance, specialty, location, fee, therapist’s gender).

Eligibility to be a member requires that you:

- β Be a currently licensed psychologist
- β Be a current member of both MCPA and CPA
- β Have been a member of MCPA for one full year prior to December 2006
- β Currently carry a minimum of $1million/$3million professional liability insurance

Consider the benefits from participating in I&R:

- β Opportunity to give back to the community
- β No fee (membership used to cost $75)
- β No advertising cost to you to solicit referrals
- β Networking: Gaining familiarity with your colleague’s niches and range of services
- β Resulting in the potential for additional “secondary” referrals to you from committee members outside the tour of duty shift

Co-chairs, Stacey Rodgers and Jacqui Caoryell have identified marketing efforts to increase community awareness of MCPA's free public service.

- β Extend our advertising to Comcast's Marin Community Billboard on Channel 26, which continuously cycles the posting 24 hours a day for approximately 7-10 days. We will periodically resubmit the posting throughout the year
- β Revise the AT&T yellow pages ad to hopefully increase visibility and effectiveness with a black background and new wording
- β Deliver a flyer to targeted audiences – physicians, psychiatrists, agencies – along with our stress balls that have the our name, number, and website stamped on it
- β Distribute flyers to community centers, libraries, schools
- β Look for potential on-line linkages
- β Submit an article for newspaper publication that describes when to consider therapy, how to find a therapist, and how therapy works.

If you would like to participate on the I&R Committee, please call Jacqui Coryell at 419-4525, or Stacey Rodgers at 460-9107.

Treasurer's Report Fred Rozendal, Ph.D.

As of March 27, 2006, MCPA has $26,036.14 on hand. This is a strong financial position for MCPA to be in.

In the near future there will be some significant expenses (web site construction; Continuing Education program in the early Fall) but we expect significant income to cover most if not all of the CE program expenses. Other routine expenses are generally within budgeted ranges.

“Collaborative Couples Therapy: Turning Fights Into Intimate Conversations”

Coming to Marin on September 8th
Author and Clinical Psychologist
Dan Wile, Ph.D.

Dr Wile will present his underlying theory of working with couples in conflict. The goal of CCT is to solve the moment rather than solve the problem, thereby turning conflict in the session into moments of intimacy.

Here is an excerpt from Dr. Wile’s course description:

“Post-doctoral participants will learn how, in their couple therapy work, to take the fight that is occurring at the moment and, by developing each partner's point of view, turn it into a moment of intimacy. Using volunteers from the audience to demonstrate the approach, the presenter will how show the inner conversation of the therapist is central to helping couples recognize the fight as an entry point into a conversation that can expand the relationship. Teaching strategies will include didactic presentation, question and answer, moment-by-moment analyses of videotaped couple interactions, and skits that dramatize the inner conversations of the therapist and the partners.”

Dr. Wile is the author of three books: Couples Therapy: A Nontraditional Approach, After The Honeymoon, and After The Fight. Also, see his website at www.danwile.com

ARTICLES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

An MCPA Soiree on Collaborative Divorce

A Digest By Camerin Ross, B.A.

I enjoyed meeting local MCPA professionals and gathering with other graduate students March 15th at the home of MCPA Secretary, Ann Buscho, Ph.D. Ann graciously hosted the MCPA soiree for members and guests titled, "Collaborative Practice: A Multi-disciplinary Approach to a Healthier Divorce." Collaborative family law attorney, Edith Kelly Politis joined Ann to explain the non-adversarial process of collaborative law. Collaborative divorce attorneys, such as Edith, form a team with other trained professionals, which may include a financial advisor, divorce coach, child specialist and vocational/career counselor to support non-marital and divorcing couples and their children through divorce. The contentious process of divorce can be the most painful transition couples' or families' experience and I was pleased to hear about the empathetic, supportive environment of collaborative practice. Collaborative lawyers facilitate negotiations between parties who craft their own agreement with a philosophy built on human dignity. Based on the underlying needs and concerns of both parties, collaborative practice professionals seek to optimize the outcome for both parties. The team focuses on mutual problem solving, open communication between professionals and Ann articulated the distinction between her role as a divorce coach and therapist. “The therapist helps you unpack your bags and examine the contents; the Divorce Coach helps you carry your bags from one side of the street to the other.” She teaches clients how to interact and communicate in a respectful, open, honest manner during the divorce, which are skills that can lead to positive post divorce co-parenting. Ann provides clients a safe place to deal with emotional issues and volatility that affect the client’s behavior or position in order to resolve disputes respectfully while preserving self-esteem. I was impressed with the focus in collaborative practice on successful negotiations between parties that are in the best interest of the divorcing family as a whole, putting the needs of the children first. Given the disheartening fact that half of all marriages and non-marriage relationships do not succeed, I applaud professionals like Ann and Edith who dedicate themselves to helping couples and families successfully divorce with their emotional health intact.

Ann Buscho, Ph.D., (415) 456-0952, is a licensed clinical psychologist who worked for the past 12 years as a Clinical Supervisor at Marin County Community Mental Health, Youth and Family Services, and now has a full-time private practice in San Rafael. Her specialties include family issues, anxiety, depression, and trauma. She has worked with high-conflict divorce and custody issues; she teaches collaborative, client-centered, therapy practices. She is a designated Stress Manager for Marin County OES. She is a clinician with a residential program for traumatized emergency responders and their families and actively works with several professional organizations. She graduated from Stanford University and the California Graduate School of Psychology.

Edith Kelley Politis, (415) 453-3055, has been practicing collaborative family law for eight years as well as effectively litigating family law and other civil cases for over 20 years. She graduated with honors in 1984 from USF School of Law. Edith also works with the Center for the Contemplative Mind in Society and is instrumental in producing the highly successful meditation retreats for lawyers at Spirit Rock Meditation Center. Edith helps people dissolve their marriage without destroying their lives. You and Edith team up with the other collaborative professionals (divorce coaches, financial consultants, and child specialists) to transform a family tragedy into the most positive outcome possible. The job is done when everyone wins, including you. She knows what she’s doing and is good at it, and is especially effective at the thorough preparation that is indispensable for successful negotiation.

CONSULTATION GROUP WITH STEVEN FRANKEL, MD

CE Units available for psychologists, (A.P.A. Provider #1754), L.C.S.W.s and M.F.T.s (Calif. Provider # 3239).

Since 2004, Steven Frankel, MD, and the Center for Collaborative Psychology have been dedicated to creating a community of like-minded psychotherapists who know each others' work well and can refer to one another. The experience of participating in this group has never failed to be exciting. The group's agenda includes case discussions and a didactic component where we read and discuss pertinent literature. While we are a diverse and flexible group, we all share a relational orientation.

The group is led by Steve Frankel, author of Making Psychotherapy Work: Collaborating Successfully with Your Patient (2007, International Universities Press), Hidden Faults: Recognizing and Resolving Therapeutic Disjunctions (2000, International Universities Press), and Intricate Engagements: the Collaborative Basis of Therapeutic Change (2003, Rowman and Littlefield).

The group meets biweekly for 1 1/2 hours in Kentfield, and consists of no more than 6 participants. The fee per session is $85.

To find out whether this group might be right for you, contact Steve at (415) 456-6611 or stevenfrankelmd@earthlink.net. Or www.collaborativepsychology.com
